K.

K

K, k, a guttural, used in the oldest period of the language, but discontinued at an early date, except in a few old abbreviations, e.g. K. for Kaeso, K. or KAL. for Kalendae (Calendae), and KAR. for Karthago (Carthago). K. is often softened into P; e.g. lupus =λύκος, spolium=σκῦλον, palumbes = columbs, popina = coquina (P.S.L.G. § 12, p. 59). For the history of the letter, see Roby, vol. i. p. 34; P.S.L.Q. p. 9; Reid, Cic. Lael. p. 64.

APPENDIX A.

THE ROMAN CALENDAR.

The Roman months were of the same number of days as the English months, but were differently divided. There were three chief days in each month:—

1. The Calends (Calendae or Kalendae), always upon the 1st.
2. The Nones (Nonae, i.e. ninth before the Ides), on the 5th or 7th.
3. The Ides (Idus), upon the 13th or 15th.

 The Ides were always eight days after the Nones.

In all the months, except March, May, July, and October, the Nones were on the 5th, and the Ides on the 13th; but in these four months the Nones fell on the 7th and the Ides on the 15th, respectively. Hence the memorial couplet:—

> In March, July, October, May,
> The Nones were on the seventh day.
> (And the Ides consequently on the 15th.)

From these three (the Calends, Nones, and Ides) the other days were reckoned backwards, and inclusively; i.e. days between the 1st and the Nones were reckoned as so many days before the Nones, days between the Nones and Ides as so many days before the Ides, days after the Ides as so many days before the Calends of the month next following. The day immediately preceding one of these reckoning points was called pridie Calendas, pridie Nonas, etc.; the day next but one before was reckoned as the third day before (the Calends, Nones, etc., being themselves included in the reckoning).

Hence, to find the day of the month according to Roman reckoning we must use one of two rules:—

1. For the days before the Calends, add 2 to the number of the days of the month and subtract the English number from it.
2. For the days before the Nones and Ides, add 1 to the day on which the Nones or Ides fall, and subtract the English number from it.

Thus for January 18th (by Rule 1),
31+2−18=15, i.e. 16th before the Calends of February.
For January 2d (by Rule 2),
5+1−2=4, i.e. the 4th before the Nones.
For January 9th (by Rule 2),
13+1−9=5, i.e. the 5th before the Ides.

March was originally the first month in the year. July (previously called Quintilis) was called Julius in honour of C. Iulius Caesar; August (previously Sextilis) was named after Augustus Caesar.

In writing dates the Romans used abbreviated forms, e.g. prid. Cal. Iun. (pridie * Calendas Iunias): v. Non. Mart. (quinto† Nonas Martias), or a. d. v. Non. Mart. (ante diem quintum Nonas Martias).

In this last form, which is used almost exclusively by Cicero and Livy, the prep. ante has quitted its proper place before Nonas, to stand before diem, which is not dependent on it; the exact day being thrown in parenthetically and attracted from the abl. into the acc. case, in consequence of following ante. This ante-diem came to be regarded as an indeclinable substantive, and was used in dependence on the prepositions ad, in, ex;‡ e.g. Consul Latinas in ante diem tertium, Idus Sextiles edixit: ex ante diem tertium Nonas Iunias usque ad pridie Calendas Septembres.

In Leap-year, Feb. 24th (a. d. vi Cal. Mart.) was reckoned twice over. Hence this day was called dies bissextus (double sixth), and leap-year itself annus bissextus or bissextilis.

ROMAN MEASURES OF WEIGHT.

	siliqua			(3 grains *).
	3 siliquae	make	1 obolus,	(9 grains).
	2 oboli	,,	1 scriptulum (scripulum, or scrupulum),	(18 grains).
	2 scriptula	,,	1 semisextula,	(36 grains).
	3 scriptula	,,	1 drachma,	(2 dwt. 6 gr.).
1½ drachma or	2 semisextulae	,,	1 sextula,	(3 dwt.).
	1½ sextula	,,	1 sicilicus,	(4 dwt. 18 gr.).
	1½ sicilicus	,,	1 duella,	(6 dwt. 1 gr.).
	1½ duella	,,	1 semuncia,	(9 dwt. 3 gr.).
3 duellae or	2 semunciae	,,	1 uncia,	(18 dwt. 5 gr.).
	12 unciae	,,	1 As (or Libra),	(10 oz. 18 dwt. 13 gr.).

The unit of weight was the libra, or Roman pound, equal to about $\frac{2}{3}$ lb. avoirdupois.

APPENDIX C.

I. THE ROMAN AS.

The Roman As denoted (a) the copper coin, (b) the unit of weight (libra), (c) the unit of measure (iugerum), (d) any unit, considered as divisible. The As was divided into 12 parts or unciae, and the different fractions received different names. See Dictionary, as. 1; P. S. L. G. § 34, viii.; and pp. 566, 567; Roby, Lat. Gr. vol. i. App. D. viii. x. xii.; Ramsay, Dict. Ant.

II. ROMAN COINS.

Copper:—the Teruncius, the Sembella, and the As or Libella. Silver:—the Sestertius, the Quinarius or Victoriatus, and the Denarius. Gold:—the Aureus.

2	Teruncii	make	1 Sembella
2	Sembellae	,,	1 As or Libella
2½	Asses	,,	1 Sestertius
2	Sestertii	,,	1 Quinarius or Victoriatus
2	Quinarii	,,	1 Denarius
25	Denarii	,,	1 Aureus.

Besides the copper coins above mentioned, there were also in use at various times the Dupondius= 2 Asses; the Tressis=3 Asses; the Decussis=10 Asses. Coins also existed for the Semis, Triens, Quadrans, Sextans, and Uncia. The Centussis was a sum of money (100 Asses), not a coin.

For Roman computation of money, see P. S. L. G. pp. 568, 569; Roby, Lat. Gr. vol. i. App. D. viii. pp. 446-449.

III. ROMAN CALCULATION OF INTEREST.

	Per month.		Per year.
unciae usurae,	1-12th per cent.	=	1 per cent.
sextantes usurae,	1-6th ,,	=	2 ,,
quadrantes usurae,	1-4th ,,	=	3 ,,
trientes usurae,	1-3rd ,,	=	4 ,,
quincunces usurae,	5-12ths ,,	=	5 ,,
semisses usurae,	½ ,,	=	6 ,,
septunces usurae,	7-12ths ,,	=	7 ,,
besses usurae,	2-3ds ,,	=	8 ,,
dodrantes usurae,	3-4ths ,,	=	9 ,,
dextantes usurae,	5-6ths ,,	=	10 ,,
deunces usurae,	11-12ths ,,	=	11 ,,
centesimae usurae, or asses usurae,	1 ,,	=	12 ,,
binae centesimae,	2 ,,	=	24 ,,
ternae centesimae,	3 ,,	=	36 ,,
quaternae centesimae,	4 ,,	=	48 ,,
quinae centesimae, or quinae,	5 ,,	=	60 ,,

The XII Tables fixed the yearly interest at 1-12th of the capital (1 uncia per As, hence called fenus unciarium), equivalent to 8⅓ per cent. for the old year of 10 months.

APPENDIX D.

ROMAN MEASURES OF LENGTH, SURFACE, AND CAPACITY*.

(a) MEASURES OF LENGTH.

1½ digiti,	1 uncia,		(nearly=1 Engl. inch).
12 unciae,	1 pes (Roman foot),		(nearly=1 Engl. foot).
1½ pedes,	1 cubitus,		(nearly=1½ Engl. feet).
2½ pedes,	1 gradus,		(degree or step).
5 pedes,	1 passus,		(pace).
1000 passus,	1 mile,		(mille passuum=4850 Engl. feet).

In land-surveying, the pertica (Engl. rod) contained 10 feet, hence called decempēda. The actus measured 12 perticae.

(b) MEASURES OF SURFACE.

480 pedes quadrati (square feet),	1 actus simplex.
5 actus,	1 uncia.
6 unciae,	1 actus (quadratus). (=1 rood 9 perches 231 sq. feet).
2 actus quadrati,	1 iugerum (=2 roods 19 perches 189 sq. feet).

(c) MEASURES OF CAPACITY.

4 ligulae,	1 cyathus,	(about a wine-glass).
4 cyathi,	1 triens=⅓ of a sextarius.
6 cyathi,	1 hemina,	(about half a pint).
2 heminae or 12 cyathi,	1 sextarius,	(nearly a pint).
16 sextarii,	1 modius,	(about a peck).
6 sextarii,	1 congius,	(3 quarts, liquid measure).
4 congii,	1 urna,	(about 3 gallons).
2 urnae,	1 amphora,	(about 6 gallons).
20 amphorae,	1 culeus,	(about 120 gallons).

* Approximate English equivalents are given, omitting fractions.
